THE HISTORY OF A DESK

New State Dairy Commissioner "Inherits" Unusual Desk

When Robert Flint recently was appointed to the office of State Dairy Commissioner he "inherited" the most traveled desk and in some ways the most unusual desk in the ownership of the state. In the first place it is declared to be the only mahogany desk in the state house. The others are oak and while some of them date back to territorial days, they do not enjoy the aristocratic associations of the rather small piece of furniture in which the new state dairy commissioner is finding a place for his papers.

The desk was purchased in 1905 and was first used in the North Dakota headquarters of the Alaskan Exposition at Portland. Then it traveled back to North Dakota and was in the office of the attorney general. Later it greeted Mr. Flint when he was member of the state force before. Some time before that it had been rescued by one of the custodians of the state house when a retiring official holder sought to move it from the building as private property.

Mr. Flint brings to his association with this mahogany desk something of state historic interest also, as he erected the first creamery in North Dakota. The year was 1899 and the place Oliver county. Mr. Flint is inclined to believe that his judgment as to the place to start creameries is good, for this plant, 20 miles from a railroad, is still running while other and better known concerns have flourished for a day and then gone out of business.

Highest sun temperature was recently recorded on the Persimmon gulf by a thermometer which registered 157 degrees.

DAWN OF NEW ERA IN AMERICAN LITERATURE

"Our Own Authors Are Ceasing to Emulate British Cousins," Says Noted Writer

By NEA Service

New York, Nov. 29.—The dawn of a new era in American literature!

It has come, according to Fannie Hurst, noted writer and playwright and author of "Humoresque," one of her outstanding contributions to literature and a masterpiece on the screen.

"At last," says Miss Hurst, "the real American authors are being just that—American writers. They are beginning to write their own country's literature."

"Everywhere, one who is in the game can feel this new era taking hold."

Miss Hurst believes this is the result of the World War. "America emerged from the war," she says, "as mistress of the world. She stood on her own feet."

"This had its effect on literature. Writers are ceasing to emulate their English cousins."

"Probably the youthful writers of the country took the first step. They began writing about youth and youth read about itself. This, of course, was confined to a small area."

"But it is growing. It is rapidly leading to writings about ideas that are typical American."

"A new trend in literature always comes forth first in poetry. Then prose follows in line. This is true of the present trend."

"Soon, when we say American literature, it will mean something."

Fannie Hurst smiles her way into one's friendship.

Asked what prompted her to enter the literary world, she said: "I simply wanted to write. I was sure that I wanted to."

"There is the trouble with a great many people. They fall in love with the idea of writing, then, when they come down to the actual work, it staggers them."

"Paper and pen are the most tangible things in the world. Anyone can have them."

"As a result, a great many people merely want to WANT to write."

"Always be sure that you really want to tackle the work of writing before you enter the literary field; that is my advice to the young people of today."

Miss Hurst attended Washington University and Columbia College. She has made a special study of the stage and the shop girl and her environs. Much material for her short stories was obtained through service as a saleswoman, a waitress and from a trip across the ocean in steerage.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

NOW is the time for the thrifty housewife to gather her stores for winter. Pickles of various kinds may be put up at a time without too much of a burden to the cook.

Oil Pickles.
Take one hundred small-sized cucumbers, wash and slice. The size of cucumber which slices the size of a quarter is best. Do not peel, but wash carefully before slicing. Add one and three-fourths cupsful of salt to the cucumbers and let stand three hours. Slice three plates of onions, the slices the same size as the cucumbers, cover with cold water and let them stand three hours also. Drain the cucumbers and onions, add three ounces of white mustard seed, one ounce of celery seed, one ounce of white pepper, with a scant pint of olive oil. Mix well and fill jars; add vinegar to fill jars. Seal and put away in a cool place. Good to eat in ten days.

Cucumber Pickles.
Take one gallon of vinegar, one pound of good mustard, one cupful of salt, one-half cupful of sugar, mix well and add the fresh cucumbers each day as they are picked fresh from the vines. Cover and put away for winter use. Mixed spices and an onion or two may be added for flavoring, if desired.

Watermelon Marbles.
Cut out with a potato peeler from the center of a firm but ripe watermelon enough pink balls to fill a quart can. Prepare a heavy syrup, adding a slice or two of lemon and a piece of ginger root, drop in the melon marbles and cook until well scalded. Drop the balls into a can and pour over the syrup and seal. These are delicious preserves to use as pudding garnish or for ice creams.

Yellow Tomato Preserves.
Make a syrup of one-half pound of sugar and one lemon, juice and rind and enough water to dissolve the sugar. Add one pound of tomatoes and cook until well scalded through, skin out the tomatoes and boil down the syrup until quite thick. The lemon rind should be cooked in water until tender, the water used to add to the sugar.

Preserved Citron.
Peel, cut in pieces, remove seeds and cut in dice a citron lemon; add one lemon cut in thin slices, seeds carefully removed. Cook the melon and lemon until tender in clear water. Drain and cover the fruit with sugar. Take the melon liquor, add sugar to make a heavy syrup and when thick add the melon cubes. Can boiling hot. This makes a fine garnish or conserve to be used in various ways.

DR. J. P. UHLER

his pastor, state superintendent of instruction, district judge, governor, and president of the board that employs him. For many years he has been vice president of Gustavus Adolphus College, and spends his summers lecturing at the state university. He has had very flattering offers from the board of trustees of that university, but has preferred to remain as professor in a Lutheran church college. He is of sturdy Pennsylvania Dutch stock, a graduate of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., and is an ordained minister in the Lutheran Church. For many years he has been one of the leading educators of the Northwest. It is largely his effort coupled with that of a corps of teachers who have served nearly as many years, that has made Gustavus Adolphus College a great force in the history of the Northwest.
